

Editorial Foreword

It is with immense pleasure and a deep sense of pride that I write this foreword as the Editor-in-Chief of our highly respected and long-standing professional journal. Each edition we release carries with it a spirit of inquiry, dedication, and progress, however, this issue is truly special.

This edition delves into some of the most topical and forward-looking conversations at the very heart of Library and Information Science. It explores dynamic areas such as the use of Flipgrid for oral presentations, the growing relevance of blockchain technology, evolving cataloguing standards for electronic information retrieval, the ever-critical theme of information literacy, and the emerging landscape of infopreneurship, among others. These are not just academic discussions but are windows into the future of our profession.

I am deeply grateful to our dedicated contributors, whose scholarly efforts have once again helped us meet our vision for timely and impactful publications. Your passion for advancing knowledge keeps this journal alive and thriving. I also sincerely appreciate our loyal readers and supporters whose unwavering interest and engagement continue to validate the work we do.

Thank you all for being an integral part of this journey. Together, we are shaping the future of our profession, one edition at a time.

Warm regards,

Prof Chinwe Nwogo Ezeani

Editor-in-Chief.
